What is moisture wicking?

Moisture wicking is the process of moving moisture from the skin side of the fabric, through the fabric, to the outer side of the fabric in an attempt to keep the skin dry.

Moisture-wicking fabric can be made of a single fibre type or combination of materials (blends) with the ability to achieve a moisture gradient that encourages to transport of moisture.

Fullycombed Rompers:

Happy Biri's Baby Rompers, now made from 100% fullycombed cotton. Our cotton is combed, extracting the short end and broken fibers, leaving the longer, stronger fibers intact. The result, a softer, gentler fabric worthy of baby's smooth skin. Dye process is free from carcinogen ingredients. Snap on buttons are of Japanese origin, sturdier and snappier. MD Textile's basic baby rompers is proudly made in Malaysia.
